

Heterophobia

by Pam Rucker

Special staged reading – one night only!

“Social norms are flipped on their ears in Heterophobia; a tall glass of gay with a twist of straight. Grant comes home for a visit after a tough break-up, with a secret that gets heavier by the second. As she struggles to hold on to her hidden desires, her Moms woo her with waffles, clean underwear, and the prospect of settling down and being artificially inseminated. But as Grant’s secret becomes too big to hold onto, she is forced to make a choice about revealing who she really is.”

Date: Friday, April 16, 2010

Time: Doors at 6:30pm, show starts at 7:00pm

Tickets: Adult $10, Youth/Students/Seniors $5, Family $25

Place: Mill Woods United Church, 15 Grand Meadow Crescent, Edmonton

“People laughed, they cried, they were riveted. Pam provokes her audience without alienating them: a great feat. She takes on rather controversial subject matter, handles it with grace and humour, finds depth of character and creates a new perspective on an old argument. Her compassion and ability to ask questions, rather than judge or give answers is a great strength.”

-Lucia Frangione, Actress and Playwright

“A terrific satiric premise, which makes for wonderful humour and a pointed but delightful attack on prejudice. The dialogue is fresh and original, a real pleasure!”

-Kathleen Oliver, playwright and theatre critic for the Georgia Straight Heterophobia premiered in Calgary at the 2009 IGNITE! Festival with Sage Theatre, garnering the biggest audiences in the festival’s history!

For more info please feel free to contact Mill Woods United Church at millwoods.united@telus.net or at (780) 463-2202

For interviews with the playwright, contact Pam Rucker at: pamrocker@mac.com